‘MURDER AT MONKSCOTT!’

By

Jillian Rowe

The Rev. Celia Crawley, vicar of St. Mary’s, Monkscott Priory, is looking for ideas to raise money for church repairs. It is decided that a pageant would be a successful community effort. However, when it is suggested that the subject matter should be the witch trial and hanging which took place in the village four hundred years ago, Celia has strong misgivings, feeling that such a shameful incident is best forgotten rather than celebrated. When a young local girl with a similar background to the long dead “witch” is found hanging in the belfry, there is a spooky feeling of history repeating itself.
